1                   CHAIRMAN NICHOLAS CAFARDI: The next 2 person to testify will be Attorney Charles 3 Cunningham from the Defenders Association of 4 Philadelphia. And, again, we do thank the 5 audience for their patience. I think we're 6 running late.

7                   I was told we'd have the public
8 defender here.

9                   ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: She was 10 sick a couple of days, but she's here today.
11 Mr. Cunningham has the laboring order, but I 12 wanted to come to express my thanks to the 13 members of the committee for the hard work 14 they're doing. I know this is not easy, but 15 it's very important work and I'm happy to be 16 here on behalf of the Defender Association.
17 Just to make a few introductory comments, if 18 I may.

19                   CHAIRMAN NICHOLAS CAFARDI: Yes.

20                   ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: The 21 Defender Association -- I'm sure most of you 22 know since most of the faces are familiar -- 23 is a nonprofit association in Philadelphia
24 that contracts with the City of Philadelphia

B & R SERVICES FOR PROFESSIONALS, INC.

1           on a fee-for-service basis to provide 2           representation to indigent adults and 3           juveniles who are charged with criminal 4           offenses, and also to represent respondents 5           in civil mental health hearings and to act as 6           a child advocate for dependent and abused
7           children. We have approximately 7,100 8           children whom we represent at this time as 9           child advocates. We do approximately 4,000
10          hearings a year, civil mental health 11          hearings, and in the area of criminal 12          matters, we're now at the point where we're 13          receiving -- it has been a booming economy 14          for us, booming only in terms of the numbers 15          of cases, not the funding that we receive -- 16          approximately 65,000 new appointments a year 17          in all of those areas. The only area in 18          which we don't represent about 75 percent of 19          those constituents is in homicide where we 20          represent 20 percent -- no more than 20 21          percent of those who receive court-appointed 22          counsel. That's by order of the board of 23          judges, that stipulation.

24                   We are an organization that began in

B & R SERVICES FOR PROFESSIONALS, INC.

1           1934, but began contracting with the city in 2           1969, so we've been at it 31 years. We are a
3           diverse organization. We have now reached 4           what is rather a grand size of about 450
5           people. We have 215 attorneys now as of this 6           year, and we complement that with an 7           investigative staff of about 40 or 45.
8           Social workers, we have about 70, and 9           administrative staff makes up the rest of the 10          staff. This enables us to do a team 11          representation, not that a team is assigned 12          to an individual client in most cases, except 13          for the most serious, but it allows us to 14          triage as it were on our cases to provide our 15          own investigative services and social work 16          services on cases.

17                    What we have is an extremely high 18          volume practice as you can tell from these 19          numbers. While we receive that many new 20          appointments a year, it means that at any 21          time we have probably 100,000 to 150,000 open 22          cases that we're working on. And in terms of 23          having an attorney go to court in a year with 24          a file to represent a client, we're over

B & R SERVICES FOR PROFESSIONALS, INC.

1           350,000. These numbers are kind of 2           astronomical. It goes only to point out that 3           we are in a very high volume practice. And 4           what that means, if you translate it into 5           staff, is that we're asking a small number of 6           people to do too much work. And just as the 7           District Attorney told you, we're also not 8           paying them even a living wage in asking them 9           to do this kind of dedicated work because 10          they believe, as it's written on the outside 11          of the U.S. Supreme Court, Equal Justice For 12          All, meaning for all of our citizens.
13          Unfortunately, it's still just a promise and 14          it's pretty far from being fulfilled. And I 15          have to say, Judge, I sympathized with Mr.
16          Tennis and Mr. Mosee when you grilled them 17          about minority hiring because it's the 18          toughest thing that we do. When you're 19          hiring for Blank, Rome, you're not offering 20          them 37,000.

21                   JUDGE NELSON DIAZ: I didn't offer
22          them 37,000 at HUD, and I hired 16 minority 23          lawyers. It depends who the leader is and 24          how the leader projects the commitment to a

B & R SERVICES FOR PROFESSIONALS, INC.

1 charged not just with the indirect criminal 2 contempt, but a misdemeanor of recklessly
3 endangering another person. Those cases 4 ordinarily would go to municipal court, but 5 for whatever reasons, they end up back in 6 Family Court and they are handled as criminal 7 cases in Family Court. Here is the question:
8 The court administrator asked me why is it in 9 that all of those cases the defendants have 10 their own attorneys, either court-appointed 11 if they're indigent or privately-retained
12 attorneys. The public defender does not 13 staff that particular courtroom. The DAs are 14 there of course to perform their function.
15 What is the answer?

16 ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: The answer
17 is that it's not part of our contract with 18 the City. I think probably, Judge, the 19 genesis of it was a political decision, that 20 someone was going to give business to 21 someone. To my knowledge, we have never done 22 that, at least not in my memory have we done 23 that. It's not part of our contract.

24 JUDGE IDA CHEN: Here is the other

B & R SERVICES FOR PROFESSIONALS, INC.

1 thing I want to learn about today: I
2 interned two summers at the Defender's
3 Office, a really rewarding experience. One
4 of my former law students, Michael Monn,
5 recently interned in your office, also a 6 great experience for a young Asian American 7 student. I'm seeing more and more Asian 8 defendants in the criminal justice system.
9 How do you all handle that?

10 ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: In terms of 11 representation?

12 JUDGE IDA CHEN: In terms of their 13 language capabilities, control.

14 ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: We do it 15 certainly by getting the services of 16 translators, whether --

17 JUDGE IDA CHEN: Aren't the 18 translators vendors or are they employees of 19 your organization?

20 ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: They're not 21 employees because the only employee who is on 22 staff who is a translator is a Spanish 23 interpreter. We don't have employees because 24 we don't have sufficient business to warrant

B & R SERVICES FOR PROFESSIONALS, INC.

1           that. But we do have access to having 2           interpreters when they're needed in the 3           office for interviewing, in the courtroom or 4           even to go to the prisons to interview with 5           clients. We don't have the luxury of having 6           attorneys who speak the variety of Asian 7           languages, nor do we have very many Asian 8           Americans.

9                         JUDGE IDA CHEN: Can you tell me 10           which organizations you've contracted with?
11           I'm just curious, which interpretation are 12           you using?

13                        ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: That I
14           don't know

15                        CHARLES CUNNINGHAM, ESQUIRE: I think 16           it's Berlitz.

17                        ELLEN GREENLEE, ESQUIRE: I'd have to 18           find out. I don't really know. I will find 19           out for you.

20                        JUDGE IDA CHEN: I'm just curious how 21           good they are.

22                        CHAIRMAN NICHOLAS CAFARDI: Any other 23           questions?

24                        ATTORNEY LYNN MARKS: Do you keep
